This two story frame building is constructed of frame on a brick foundation. The gable-front building is two stories wide on its south façade, with two 2/2 sash windows with molded architraves in the second story. However, the first story contains a central entrance with an asymmetrical gable-roofed one-bay entrance porch with a shed-roofed outbuilding attached to the west side of the porch. A circular window with tracery pierces the attic gable on this front façade. The building is four bays long, with 2/2 sash windows with molded architraves on the second floor, and asymmetrical windows and doors on the first floor. A chimney rises from the northwest portion of the gable roof.

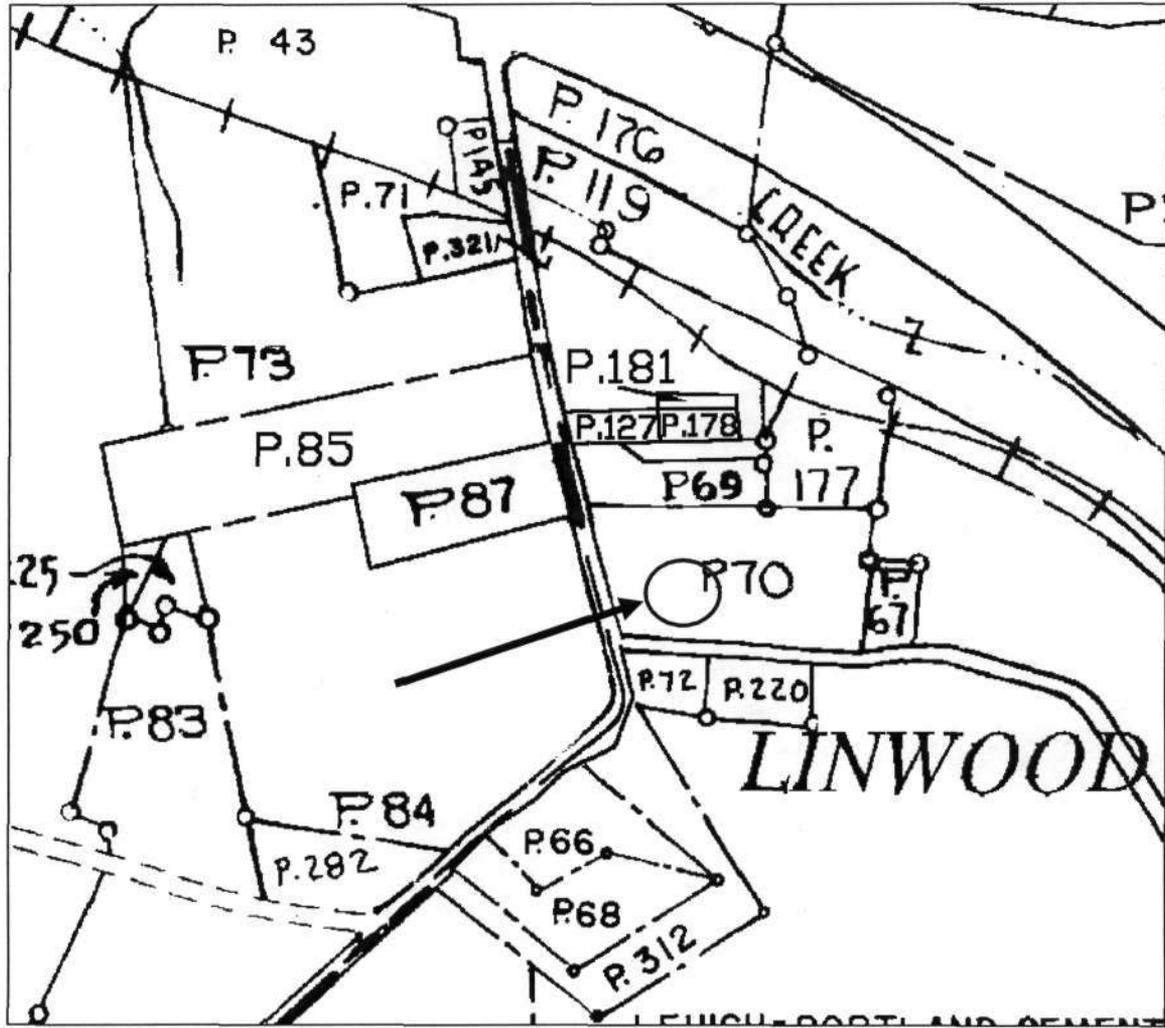

The building was constructed in 1898 as a Sunday school room and schoolhouse. It was later converted to a residence.
